Emerson da Silva
Luz, Água e Terra Preta
April 15 – May 28, 2017

Galeria Palácio is pleased to present Luz, Água e Terra Preta, Emerson da Silva's first solo exhibition with the gallery. A film, an installation of photographs, and a photograph are presented. Luz, Água e Terra Preta marks the first exhibition presented in Galeria Palácio.

The film Terrestre (2017) portrays the life cycle of a group of lettuce in a small garden, from fertilization to pre-harvest. As a central subject of the film, the development of the lettuce garden is documented from the construction of a context formed by elements of social and cultural order (the personal relationship of each human being with the environment that inhabits); of spatial order (the construction of a narrative around a portion of space); and of systemic order (the network of processes established in relationships between human being and nature).

The narrative presented in the film Terrestre is composed of four conjunctures: the lettuce seeds fertilization in modules; the transplantation of seedlings seeded, at the beginning of life, to the terrestrial soil; the plasticity of the lettuce development cycle; and the reach of adulthood of the group of lettuce grown and its final harvest.

In Alface Lisa (2017), a photograph portrays one of the lettuces of the small garden documented in the film Terrestre. The photograph records the lettuce at the time of the pre-harvest life cycle — and subsequent consumption.

With the same title of the exhibition, Luz, Água e Terra Preta (2017) introduces a narrative analogous to the film Terrestre from an installation of photographs. The key factors employed in the construction of the film dialogue and relate in Luz, Água e Terra Preta.
